US Defense Secretary Gates: US Committed to Long-term Relationship with Kurdistan Regional Government

December 11, 2009

Erbil, Kurdistan Region, (KRP.org) - Kurdistan Region President Masoud Barzani received US Secretary of Defense Robert Gates and several other officials from the US Defense Department and the US Embassy in Iraq today.

At the meeting, Secretary Gates opened his remarks by stating that the principle purpose of his visit to Erbil, made at the behest of President Obama, was to reaffirm the US friendship with the KRG and the Kurdish people. Gates acknowledged that Kurdish cooperation is indispensable for the successful implementation of security and strategic framework agreements between the US and Iraq, and essential to securing a unified and peaceful Iraq. He also underscored a message from President Obama and Vice President Biden that the United States is committed to a strategic friendship and partnership with Iraq and the KRG.

The Secretary said that: "We have made 3 commitments:

1. To use our influence to ensure that the outstanding disputes between the KRG and the Iraqi Government, including the Kirkuk dispute and other disputed areas and the sharing of oil revenues, are resolved based on the Iraqi Constitution and Article 140.
2. We will continue with our military efforts with the Peshmerga forces as well as with the Iraqi Army and security forces within the framework of our joint security architecture.
3. We will offer our support and assistance for a census to be conducted in Iraq next year."

Addressing Kurdistan Region President Masoud Barzani, Secretary Gates went on to say, "We recognize the concerns that you have about the future of your people and we will help you to ensure a prosperous and peaceful Iraq. We will not abandon you. We believe improved relations with Baghdad will ensure that you achieve your goals in Iraq."

The Secretary also said that during his visit to Iraq, he asked all sides to commit to Iraq's national unity when forming the next government, to avoid maximalist demands, and to show flexibility in their positions and policies. He conveyed a message to all sides to pursue a peaceful resolution to outstanding issues.

At the end of his remarks, Gates extended an official invitation to President Barzani on behalf of President Obama and the US Government to visit Washington.

After welcoming and thanking the US Secretary of Defense for his visit, President Barzani said:

"Your message represents the aspirations of our people, and this is the first time that the US President, Vice President and now you, Mr. Secretary, clearly reaffirm this message to us. Therefore on behalf of the people of Kurdistan and through you to the President and Vice President of the US, I reaffirm to you, and through you, to President Obama and Vice President Biden, that we will never be part of the problem, but continue to be a force for good in Iraq and part of the solution.

“We will do our best for a prosperous and peaceful, federal and democratic, Iraq. As a part of Iraq, we see it as our duty to protect the national unity of Iraq and when there's a problem, the Constitution must be our guide.” President Barzani went on to say that there are crucial elections coming up in March and that although the recently adopted election law was not ideal for the Kurdistan Region, when negotiating in democratic politics you cannot have everything your way or ignore the wishes of other parties.

“We believe that American commitments to support us are far more important than one or two more or less seats [in the Iraqi Parliament]. In the Iraqi political process today, no party can single-handedly govern. Therefore, it is necessary to form coalitions with the other parties that believe in peaceful co-existence and democracy.”

President Barzani also emphasized the firm and consistent position of the Kurdistan Region in continuing to be in a joint front with the US in the fight against terrorism and those who are against freedom and democracy in Iraq. He stated, “We will also continue in our efforts to secure a stable Iraq, free from terror.”

Regarding the situation in the Kurdistan Region, President Barzani articulated that the Kurdistan Region will continue to establish its constitutional institutions and put forth all efforts to secure a bright future for the people, and with this aim, to unify the Peshmerga and Security Forces [Regional Guards].

President Barzani happily accepted the formal invitation to visit Washington.

The US Secretary of Defense, after visiting Baghdad and Kirkuk, arrived this afternoon in Erbil, the capital of the Kurdistan Region. He was received at the Erbil International Airport by Fuad Hussein, the Chief of Staff for the Kurdistan Region Presidency and Falah Mustafa Bakir, Head of the Department of Foreign Relations.

The meeting was attended by the KRG Ministers for Peshmerga and Interior, Director of the Intelligence and Security Agency Masrour Barzani, and a number of other KRG officials. From the American side it was attended by Ambassador Hill, General Jacoby, and other officials from the Department of Defense and the US Embassy in Baghdad.

Senior KRG delegation meets US officials, business leaders and diaspora

December 24, 2009

Washington, US (KRG.org) – Dr Fuad Hussein, Chief of Staff to President Barzani of the Kurdistan Region and Minister Falah Mustafa Bakir, Head of the Department of Foreign Relations of the Kurdistan Regional Government (KRG), concluded their weeklong visit to Washington DC and Detroit, Michigan.

The delegation, accompanied by the KRG's Representative to the US Qubad Talabany, met US Administration officials, Congressional Members, members of the American business communities, think tanks and the media to discuss the latest developments in Iraq and the Kurdistan Region.

Topics discussed during the meetings included implementation of Article 140 - the roadmap to resolving the status of the disputed territories - the need for a general census to be held in Iraq, the upcoming national elections, and the need for the swift formation of a post-election government. The delegation reaffirmed the KRG's commitment to advance the democratic process in Iraq along with its long-held position to resolve issues through political dialogue. The delegation also expressed appreciation to the US for its willingness to work with all Iraqi parties to resolve outstanding political problems facing the country.

Dr Hussein said, "We are pleased the US has reaffirmed its commitment towards long-term relations with Iraq and the Kurdistan Region. We are committed to maintaining a strong relationship with the United States, which we believe must remain engaged in Iraq to help us emerge from the current situation to become a democratic state." He added, "A lot of progress has been made, but there are still a number of conflicts - including the disputed territories and Article 140, oil revenue sharing and the universal adherence to the Iraq federal constitution - that need to be addressed if we are to ensure long term stability in Iraq."

In talks with business leaders, the delegation stated the Kurdistan Region's desire to forge greater partnerships with the US business community, and outlined the many possibilities to be part of the Region's economic growth. Minister Falah Mustafa Bakir said, "Great economic opportunities exist in the Kurdistan Region. We want the US business community to partner with us, as so many other international firms from Europe and the Middle East have done, as we develop critical sectors such as agriculture, industry and tourism."

During the visit, the delegation travelled to Detroit, Michigan, where they met with members of the Chaldean and broader Iraqi community. The Detroit area hosts the largest population of Chaldean-Assyrian-Syriacs outside of Iraq.

"Meeting Iraq's diverse Diaspora is essential to strengthening bonds and partnerships that could translate into better cooperation and understanding on the ground," said Qubad Talabany. "The Kurdistan Region has become a safe-haven for targeted groups, however we know that more needs to be done to strengthen national institutions that could better protect all ethnic and religious groups in Iraq," he added.

Statement by President Barzani on the Official Preliminary Results of Iraq's Elections

Salahaddin, Kurdistan Region of Iraq (KRP.org) – On Friday (26 March 2010), Iraq's Independent High Electoral Commission announced the official preliminary results for Iraq's parliamentary elections.

We would like to reiterate our thanks to the people of Kurdistan; the people of the disputed territories and the diaspora for their keen participation in the last elections. At the same time, we congratulate all the winning lists who won the support of the voters.

Despite many deficiencies and incidences of fraud, especially in Mosul (Ninewa Governorate) and Hawija District (Kirkuk Governorate), the election process generally ran smoothly.

We have been following the developments very closely, and in the coming days we will meet with the winning blocs from Kurdistan and then announce the Kurdistan Region's official stance to the people of Iraq and the Kurdistan Region.
